

Dr Mridula Nath Chakraborty

Dr Mridula Nath Chakraborty is the National Convener of the Asian Australian Studies Research Network (AASRN).

She teaches and researches on Indigenous, postcolonial, diasporic-national literatures and cultures in English, and in translation, at the Monash Intercultural Lab, Monash University. Her monograph, Hotfooting Around Essentialism: the identity politics of postcolonial feminisms, is expected in 2020 (Anthem). Her co-edited collection of essays, titled Embodiments and Inhabitations, is published by the Journal of Intercultural Studies (2021). She is the commissioning co-editor for a new series, Creative, Social and Transnational Perspectives on Translation (Taylor & Francis).

Dr Chakraborty contributes to cross-cultural advocacy and transnational literary-creative networks through her work as a core partner of South Asia Diaspora International Researchers' Network (SADIRN) and board member of Southern Crossings: Reimagining Australia, South Asia and the world. Mridula curates the My Place, My Story community engagement project with Monash Council, and has in the past convened the Australia-India Literatures International Forum (2012) and Literary Commons: Writing Australia-India in the Asian century with Dalit, Indigenous and multilingual tongues (2014-16).